FAQ's and More Information

What is a Giving Circle?

The Women for Western Health Giving Circle has an ambitious goal: To build a community of women philanthropists who will pool their knowledge, resources and ideas to support and fund projects that will have a significant impact on the health and wellbeing of the Western Health community.

Why should I join?

We are a diverse group of socially-minded women with a deep desire to help the community of the west and a passion for social justice. We bring women together for a few fun and meaningful gatherings each year where we can enjoy each other's company (and a glass of wine), hear interesting presentations, and jointly decide which vital Western Health initiatives we want to help.

How much does it cost?

Each person is asked to commit to a minimum donation of $1,000 annually. This can be paid as a one-off annual donation or as monthly $90 instalments. (A small additional cost applies to instalment payments to cover admin costs) Corporate memberships are also available

Where does my money go?

All gifts are paid into the Women for Western Health Giving Circle Fund managed by the Western Health Foundation. The contributions are pooled to support high impact grants to Western Health initiatives. Winning initiatives are collectively voted on by members at an annual Grant Announcement Evening. Donations are fully tax-deductible.

Are there meeting and/or events?

In addition to the hosting the annual grant making event, the Giving Circle will host a number of other events for networking and learning. Attendance at the grant voting event is included in your membership. Other events are charged as cost.

Can anyone join?

While the Giving Circle is primarily a collective giving program for women, everyone is welcome.

Leadership

Presently the Giving Circle is managed by the Western Health Foundation in association with the Western Health Foundation Board. It is anticipated that a volunteer committee will be developed over time as the Circle grows.
